STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

Oh, say can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight
O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.
Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

HAIL, BLUE AND GOLD

(Alma Mater)

Hail, Blue and Gold!
In proud acclaim lend your voices.
Let the blue hill's t'ward the West
Resound the echo to the sea.

Hail, Blue and Gold!
Our Alma Mater rejoices.
California of the South,
Accept this pledge of faith to thee.

BENEDICTION

RECESSIONAL

ACADEMIC DRESS is mainly ecclesiastical in origin, since learning was largely confined to the church when the universities arose. Ecclesiastical dress in turn is of Roman origin, being like the costume of the Roman Senator, the Pontifex Maximus, and other officials. In the early times of the universities at Oxford and Cambridge the English word for scholar was clerk, who was a man either in holy orders or presumably about to take them. According to Horsely, he was "addicted to a life of study and devotion." Pictures in manuscripts of the 15th century show the clerk wore a gown and had the crown of his head shaved to form a tonsure.

The academic gown has been variously known through the centuries as the toga, the roba, or the tunica talaria. It is closely related to the cope, a mantle of silk or other cloth worn by church dignitaries in processions, at solemn lauds, and on other similar occasions. In the famous Ellsmere MS, Chaucer's clerk of Oxenford appears in a red skull cap, a furred tippet, and a hood, the hood falling somewhat back. These elements become conventionalized into the cap, gown, and hood of present academic usage. The hood as worn in the United States is black and lined with the colors of the university, e.g., blue and gold in the case of the University of California hoods. The color of the band along the outer edge indicates the scholar's field of learning. Thus the degree in Letters or Arts is symbolized by white, Theology by scarlet, Law by purple, Philosophy by blue, Science by gold, Medicine by green, Public Health by salmon-pink, Engineering by orange, Dentistry by lilac.
