

ALAMEDA DIRECTORY.

THE TOWN OF ALAMEDA.

The Town of Alameda was incorporated by an Act of the Legislature in 1872. It embraces the entire township of Alameda and is, in extent, about two and one-half miles from east to west, and about seven miles in length from north to south. The population is variously estimated at from 3,500 to 4,500.

The location is exceedingly attractive, the site being covered with a growth of live oak. The climate is excellent, the air warm, mild and invigorating. Many families from San Francisco avail themselves of this sheltered spot as an escape from the fierce winds which rage at the city from March to October.

Communication with Oakland and San Francisco is via the Central Pacific Railroad, which runs twelve trains each way daily, and three additional trains on Sundays. Monthly tickets, entitling the holder to a round trip daily to and from San Francisco, are sold for three dollars

Alameda has bright prospects ahead. There is every reason that a populous and wealthy town will be built up. Its growth is constant and at the present time quite rapid.

Real estate is held at fair prices, choice residence lots, 50 by 100 feet, selling at from $400 to $700 each, cheaper lots at $150 to $300. The best business property is worth $25 to $40 per front foot

Alameda has two dry good stores, five groceries, one hardware and two drug stores.

There are two well kept hotels, the Yosemite and the Loyal Oak.

TOWN GOVERNMENT.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES—H. Robinson, President; E. B. Mastick, John Barton, P. A. Wenck and William Simpson. This Board is elected on the first of May, annually. Term of office, one year. Regular meetings every Tuesday evening.
