

maintained by many lines of stages, and the Placerville and Sacramento Valley Railroad enters the county from the west, reaching as far as Shingle Springs, having twenty-one miles of track in the county. Formerly, here was the great thoroughfare of immigration and travel across the Sierra Nevada, and several fine turnpikes were constructed; but the completion of the Pacific Railroad turned travel away. Its great resource, mining, is now reviving, and with its other resources developed, promises to restore her former prosperity.

Officers: Charles F. Irwin, County Judge; Whitman H. Hill, Clerk, Recorder and Auditor; Gideon J. Carpenter, District Attorney; William H. Brown, Sheriff and Treasurer; Thomas A. Galt, Tax Collector and Assessor; William Jabine, Surveyor; Frederick Collins, Coroner and Public Administrator; John P. Munson, Superintendent Public Schools.
