Plano, Tulare Co, P O 32 miles s of Visalia, and two miles south of Porterville, is a small village in the midst of an exceedingly fertile section of country, on the line of stage and team travel from Visalia and the railroad to the Kern River and Owens River Valleys. The pleasant site suggested the name, being a broad plain stretching from the Sierra, whose base is three miles eastward, to the Tulare Lake on the west, and is threaded by the Tule River which is here spanned by a fine bridge. A good school and church are attractions that gather many families to Plano.
