Weaverville, Trinity Co, P O and County seat is in Weaver Basin, on the east side of the creek of the same name, and about five miles north of its junction with the Trinity River. The town is connected by stage with Shasta, and is the trading center of almost the entire county. The basin in which it is situated was once exceedingly rich in gold, but that most accessible was rapidly extracted and the mining interest greatly declined or for a number of years fell into the hands of the Chinese. Recently, improved methods have been applied and the mining interest is again rising into importance and lasting wealth is developed. Valuable mines of quicksilver have also been found in the county which add to the business of the town. The section, hemmed in by mountains as it is, was explored as early as 1850, and gold being found on Weaver Creek and on the Trinity, in large quantities, population flowed in, and from that date Weaverville has been a prosperous place. Fire-proof buildings adorn the principal streets, and beautiful cottages, with gardens of shade and fruit trees and flowering plants, bespeak the taste and comfort of the people. One newspaper, the Trinity Journal, is published weekly.
