

OAKLAND

A truly metropolitan city that has retained its friendly atmosphere and offers unlimited possibilities for industry and home owners.

Pulsing with new life and energy under the stimulus of huge expenditures for public buildings and enterprises, Oakland stands out as the center of real progress on the Pacific Coast. Its progress is steady, substantial and far-reaching.

Educational opportunities, beautiful homes, parks, gardens, scenic beauty, highways, thriving business and industrial districts, beaches and country clubs offer every variety and opportunity for the person seeking a permanent location.

Contiguous in their boundary lines and united in their interests, the neighboring cities of this important business district centering around Oakland, the largest municipality in California, are Berkeley, Alameda, San Leandro, Hayward, Milpitas, Livermore, Pleasanton, Emeryville, Piedmont, Newark, Albany, Alvarado and Del Norte. This community forms a group of more than 500,000 persons.

Civic enterprise and strategic location tell the story of Oakland's growth. With all its advantages it will continue to grow, for it is the ideal place to live, work and to play.
