Monterey,

MONTEREY COUNTY.

Probably no place in California contains so much of interest to the traveler as Monterey. Its natural advantages are unequalled in many respects. It has one of the finest harbors in the world, and many predict for it a great future as a commercial center. The climate is considered one of the most delightful in the world, being neither too hot or too cold. Flowers bloom perpetually. For bathing purposes the beach is unsurpassed. There are many objects of historical interest in and around the town to attract the curious, the old Catholic church, built in 1794, commanding undoubtedly the largest share of attention; and all who devote an hour or so to examining its sacred precincts feel well repaid for the time thus spent. Time and space forbid our enumerating more of this most interesting old town, California's ancient capital, and we therefore leave the rest for the inquirer to learn from more complete historical sketches.
