Lectures given at the Hall of the College of Pharmacy, Fulton street, between Polk and Van Ness Avenue, for a term of six months, commencing Tuesday, April 3, 1883.

The main object of the institution is to unite the apothecaries of this State in organized efforts to elevate the standing of those engaged in the profession, by raising the qualification of its members. This is sought to be accomplished by giving instruction, by lectures and otherwise, in those branches of science on which depend the practice of pharmacy. Four chairs have been established in the College, viz., Chemistry, Botany, Materia Medica and Pharmacy. The society meets quarterly or oftener for the discussion of topics of scientific and practical interest to the pharmacist.
