To Home Builders, Contractors and Architects—IN YOUR PLANS—

for new buildings or alterations of existing buildings—whether homes, apartments, hotels, hospitals, office or other buildings—

REMEMBER TELEPHONE SERVICE—and its importance in the everyday occupancy of such buildings.

In many buildings hundreds—even thousands—of telephones are in service, and it is necessary to carry two or more wires from each telephone to some central point in the building. Thus the importance of making adequate and advance provision for telephone wiring is apparent. If such arrangements are included in the original plans delays and costly alterations after completion of the building are avoided.

Telephones and Extension Telephones are now generally recognized as essential parts of modern home equipment. Extensions are additional telephones on the main service located at other convenient places in the house to save steps. Advance provisions for concealing the wiring and suitable outlets for all telephone requirements facilitate the satisfactory installation of telephone equipment, and increase the decorative possibilities of the home.

LET US COOPERATE WITH YOU—

The Engineers of this Company will be glad at any time to cooperate with Architects, Owners, and Builders to give them the benefit of their experience, and to assist in designing for each individual building the most suitable telephone fixtures such as conduits, ducts, raceways, and mouldings, etc.

A convenient handbook covering specifications for standard methods and materials and other helpful information in making advance provision for telephone service in homes and other buildings is available for use and reference by Architects and Builders.

For a copy of this handbook or for further information, call at, or telephone, our local Business Office.

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company—
