Manufacturers Can List Dealers, or Dealers Can List Themselves

"Buyer's Guide" was originated primarily to fill a positive need of telephone subscribers. It fills an equally important need of manufacturers and retailers, for it brings to the consumer the exact information as to where to buy the manufacturer's product in which he is interested.

places

where
EXTENSION TELEPHONES
are needed:

1. Where a housewife does her own work and takes many steps.
2. Where telephone privacy is desired.
3. Where there are babies or young children that need close attention.
4. Where the housewife does much of her daily marketing by telephone.
5. Where the housewife is actively engaged with social or club affairs.
6. Where the household contains young men or young women desiring privacy.
7. Where someone is bedridden or in a wheel chair, or convalescent from illness.
8. Where a member of the family is hard of hearing.
9. Where a doctor, surgeon, dentist, practitioner or nurse lives.
10. Where servants are employed.
11. Where the telephone is apt to ring in the night.
12. Business locations — store, factory or office—that are not large enough for a Private Branch Exchange.

The cost of an extension telephone is small — only a few cents a day
