

WAR

and LONG DISTANCE

This year, war is on the wires. And the Long Distance lines to war-busy centers must be kept open for calls that help to build planes and ships and move supplies and troops.

We cannot add to the lines—that would require the use of materials needed by our armed forces.

That is why we ask that only really necessary calls be made to war-busy centers.

Your co-operation means that we can do a better war job for you and for the Nation. Thank you.

LINES

We appreciate the help you are giving us in keeping the Long Distance lines open for war calls.

The production of munitions . . . the movement of troops . . . the building of ships and bombers . . . have put the Long Distance lines squarely up against their biggest task.

Materials for building telephone lines are no longer available—they are needed on the fighting fronts.

That is why we ask that only really necessary calls be made to war-busy centers.

Thank you for your fine co-operation.
