

*For convenience in the future...
put telephone facilities
in your plans*

The blue-print stage is the time to include built-in telephone conduit and outlets. During construction, the cost is trifling. Just a few pieces of pipe or other conduit material leading to convenient outlet locations will provide raceways for telephone wires. Later on telephones can be added—or moved to other locations—without drilling holes or running wire along baseboards.

For free help in planning modern, built-in telephone wiring, call your local telephone company number and ask for free "Architects and Builders Service."