FOREWORD

An educated man is a democratic man; he believes firmly that to each man is given the divine right to share in the planning of his own life; he knows it to be true that he and his neighbor must share equally in the planning for their mutual good.

We are facing a test of education. Sincere and loyal Americans believe that all men deserve to share in decisions which concern them, that all men have equal rights and that all men have equal obligations to their country. Such Americans are the guards we need now against a future of intolerance and ignorance.

DEDICATION

To the educated man and woman—to the American who knows that only by appreciation and understanding of himself and others in the light of what is best for all may he attain to what is best for himself—and to those who today are seeking to learn these things—we dedicate this book.

"Night and day the lights of knowledge shine for George Washington students."

SURVEYOR

"The Melting Pot" is so often used as a synonym for the United States. Our nation is a melting pot—not a cauldron in which all the races and creeds of the world are blended into one drab mass, but one in which all cultures are allowed to thrive and prosper individually and yet are fused to protect that privilege of individuality.

Evidence of this has been found in a survey conducted by the editorial staff of the Surveyor, encompassing hundreds of members of the student body. The results are enlightening.

Fifty-eight per cent of the students questioned are girls; 42 per cent boys. Of the total, 75 per cent were born in California; 16 per cent in some other state, and 9 per cent in some other country. Three-fourths of those born outside of the United States want to become citizens. The one-fourth of the 9 per cent who do not plan to become citizens includes students from Latin America and the Orient who intend to return to their own countries upon completion of their education. 90 per cent of the students' parents are American citizens.

The privilege of freedom of religion has been appreciated here at George Washington. Its benefits are demonstrated by the many religious denominations represented.

MR. ERNEST J. CUMMINGS

From the Principal:

MR. CUMMINGS' MESSAGE

Scarred on the rocky walls of Thermopylae is the story of man's indomitable will for freedom and the part heroes must take to win and keep that freedom. But in the centuries that followed that historic battle heroes have died and sluggards have slept, while the Pass of Thermopylae stood stark and reproachful to remind man that once he had been free.

Again at a time of bitter trial another hero of no less stature than Leonidas stood embattled to recapture man's ancient birthright. "None but Americans," cried Washington. "Put none but Americans on guard tonight!"

Under Washington, freedom was wrested anew from the fetters of tyranny, seemingly for all time, but those same bonds are being forged again to shackle it down. The father of our country, fortunately, was a practical man with a vision in focus with reality. Among his last public utterances was the admonition to "promote institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge."

This brings us to George Washington High School and to the responsibility of you Seniors about to graduate: Your diploma of graduation carries the assurance that the holder is a real and true American. Are you? Do you realize what will be expected of every real and true American in the times that lie ahead? The years that you have spent in George Washington High School and the record of your achievements here make the answer unquestionably "Yes."

MR. KLINGNER

MISS ELEANOR M. JACKSON

To the Students:

MR. KLINGNER'S MESSAGE

He had everything that a man could wish for,— youth, wealth, family, friends, position, and a brilliant future. Yet, in a fit of anger he threw it all away. He wished to be no longer a citizen of the United States, and his wish was granted. The remaining days of his life he spent in regret and repentance. His brilliant future became a desolate waste, his friends grew strange, his family forgot, or tried to forget him, his wealth vanished, and his youth wasted into old age.

Fortunately, Philip Nolan lived only in the imagination of his creator and in the memories of those who have read his tragic story. But many of us, I fear, forgetful of the innumerable blessings which none but Americans can enjoy, daily cast those blessings aside. We become miniature Philip Nolans.

MISS JACKSON'S MESSAGE

As shadows darken land after land, the thoughts of all turn to the future of our loved America. Has she built strongly enough to withstand the prejudices and tyrannies that threaten?

Who but youth can give the answer? How triumphantly America shall come through the shadows into light depends so largely upon how zealously you, the citizens of tomorrow, guard her; how loyal you are to something bigger than yourselves; how profound your convictions of the values of democracy; how grateful for its privileges; how devoted in the practice of its responsibilities; how willing to make sacrifices for its preservation.

We have this faith in you, that your deeply-rooted and understanding love for America will hold her future safe.

ABOUT THE TEACHERS

Mr. Uhte, one of George Washington students' favorites, teacher of wood shop, sponsors a Boy Scout troop in his leisure time. He studied general courses at the University of California and at San Jose State College.

Miss Scharff, Washington's genial French teacher, is the sponsor of the French Club. At the University of California she majored in French and history. She enjoys traveling.

Miss O'Leary, advisor for the low sophomore class, teaches history and civics. English and history were her majors at the University of California. She enjoys gardening and hiking.

Miss Cook teaches English, journalism, and history. She acts as advisor for the Surveyor. She received her Master's degree at Stanford, where she majored in social science.

Mr. Magner is a favorite teacher for machine shop and mechanical drawing. He studied at San Francisco State College and San Jose State, and majored in physical science.

Mr. Pearson teaches physiology and biology. He received his M.A. at the University of California. He enjoys gardening and short story writing.

Mrs. Torrieri majored in French and Latin at the University of Nebraska. She teaches French and culture of nations. She has traveled extensively, having been to Europe several times.

Democracy's

Those politically minded students who run for student body offices need recommendations before they become candidates. Scholarship and citizenship ratings are carefully considered, and only those whose records show they are worthy of serving George Washington students are allowed to run for office.

Rallies and elections are held the term previous to the one in which the new elected officers are to work. This allows those elected to prepare themselves for the coming task of keeping George Washington on top.

Starting the term successfully by ushering in the sophomores and other new students with the Senior-Soph reception, the Spring '41 Student Body officers raised the standards of activities higher than ever before and maintained this new standard until graduation by keeping the interest of the students.

President John Contos, Vice President Barbara Wilder, Secretary Ruth Maltzer, Treasurer Jack Grannis, Custodian Mort Zimmer, Athletic Manager Bill de Recat, and Yell Leader Harold Lister were the officers who directed this long-to-be-remembered term.

John Contos presided at executive council meetings, in which the budget was planned and all other school business was voted on. The executive council is made up of all Student Body officers and class officers, plus enough representatives to make a total of six from each class.

Starting a new tradition, Mr. Cummings appointed a principal's cabinet of 12 members. The body is unofficial but brings such issues before the executive council as it thinks necessary to maintain school standards. This term the council rewrote the Constitution of the George Washington Student Body Association, adding necessary clauses and condensing the by-laws. The changes will be approved by the executive council before they become effective. Among other things the council was also responsible for a cleaner cafeteria.

Rallies were held in the north court or auditorium, depending on whether the weather were good or bad, and new talent or guest speakers were featured on each program. Some of the new talent found this term at rallies was that of Karl Willrader, who plays a boogie woogie piano; Frank Loughery, famous for his recital of "Casey at the Bat;" and Richard Carey, who played several violin concertos.

Youth Learns Leadership

Departing from the routine of game and class rallies, the Girls' Service Society and Eagle Society sponsored individual educational rallies; Mr. Frank O'Brien, Junior Council Division, State Employment Office, spoke to the girls about future employment and preparations for a job; Officer Joseph Kane, San Francisco Police Department, spoke to the boys about safety and how schools and streets can be made safer. Dr. Everett R. Clinchy talked about "Education and Human Relations" at a rally in which all students participated.

Following the Senior-Soph reception, which was handled by the high senior class officers, assisted by the student body officers, Washingtonians held their second victory rally celebrating winning the A.A.A. league varsity basketball championship. The "Indian" was once again buried and the victory plaque was locked safely in the trophy case until next year.

With victory cries still ringing in their ears, the L-10's started their first campaign. Posters saying "Pick Up, Don't Scatter," and ash cans painted with the slogan "Yours For A Clean School" were only half the job. Daily radio broadcasts and bulletin notices informed students that the "sophs" were really working. After doing a swell job, the "newcomers" relaxed and enjoyed the fruits of their labor at their own dance.

The high sophomores carried out a similar successful campaign for safety. Students patrolled the stairs and directed traffic, aided by signs giving directions about "Up" and "Down" stairs.

The juniors worked together again, presenting "A Day in the Tropics." The atmosphere presented by the flower leis and wash dresses belied the San Francisco fog. Max Liss acted as master of ceremonies at the rally and presented a talented show. The day ended with a dance to which everyone was invited.

The attendance drive sponsored by the L-12's was constantly brought to mind by notices and announcements. The low seniors celebrated the success of the drive with a "Back to the Farm Day" and bits of hayseed and straw were seen on every loyal L-12's costume.

High seniors devoted their talents to a whole "Senior Week." Starting the week with a bang at the rally Monday, the seniors announced their plans to the school and invited everyone to join the fun. Larry Keating was master of ceremonies at the rally and he presented a typical man on the street program, interviewing several seniors, and finally, the guest of honor, Herb Caen. Tuesday, the students took over all the executive positions and the teachers answered the questions. Principal John Contos, assisted by Dean of Girls Barbara Wilder, Dean of Boys Warren Townsend, Secretary Ruth Maltzer, and Senior Sponsor Howard Shields, ran the school for one day as they believed best. Wednesday the senior girls played baseball against the boys in the stadium. The game was followed by a picnic Thursday. Friday the school participated in a carnival and the end of a grand week was celebrated by everyone at a dance after school.

A dance committee under the direction of Barbara Wilder planned all student body dances and for the first time the Hello Day dance was based on a Valentine theme.

Johnny Contos was responsible for the success of the rallies. All other officers did their jobs efficiently, adding to the activities of a term that will never be forgotten.

Graduates of '41

It all started on the first brr-rr-ring of the eight-fifteen bell on an August day, nineteen hundred and thirty-eight.

They were all there—the junior high school "big shots"—the clean, scrubbed-behind-the-ears look on the little boys' faces, the first timid lipstick on the earnest little girls' faces, the scared, yet determined appearance. They, the fourteen- and fifteen-year old children, gazed at the freshly-painted murals, the utilitarian classrooms, the unbelievable view of the Golden Gate from the third floor hall, and the empty, sandy stretches of campus, which, it was said, would be covered in a few years by the gymnasium and auditorium.

Pres. Townsend, V. Pres. Morgan, Sec'y Lamoreux, Treas. Green, leaders in the seniors' program of preparedness for living in a democracy—fun and work enjoyed alike.

And now, for "these babies," three Washington years are over. Nothing but a slightly crumpled graduation program, a diploma, several hundred staunch friendships, an excellent training to meet the world, and a poignant memory, remains.

It is a sad feeling, that of leaving behind the world which one knows, and going forward to meet a different and entirely new one. Washington graduates of the class of Spring, Nineteen Hundred and Forty-One, will find the going difficult, but they will be able to look back to the "School on the Hill" and with Sam Gevartz as class president they are no longer called "the babies of the school." Washington has her first night dance and it is the high junior class who does more than its share to make the dance a huge success. These juniors wind up the term with a hilarious "Famous Character Day."

Trudging ever forward with hopeful hearts, this spirited group of Washingtonians soon becomes low seniors. They decide upon attendance as their project for the term; no one expects "Ol' Man Flu" to appear on the scene. But sure enough he does, and his influence keeps a huge number of students out for at least a week or two. So there goes the attendance drive, a good idea anyway!

Finally it comes! They are all high seniors—at least the smartest ones, anyway—and Warren Townsend is their last class president. A little sad at first, they decide to make it a term that Washingtonians will never forget. Originality is what they strive for and so "Senior Week" results. Never before in this school's history has there been a week filled with such fun and laughter. The first senior picnic and carnival are both huge successes, as is the rally and Student Control Day and with the final Senior Prom and Graduation, the high seniors reluctantly wave adieu to their alma mater.

Three earnest "Eagle" reporters doing all those little last-minute jobs that confront the staff of the average high school paper on deadline day! Gloria Birtell is tapping out her assignment and listening to several suggestions made by the "Eagle's" roving shutterbug, Ed Markovich. Helen Papatthakas seems very intent on doing that bit of necessary re-writing required before the story can actually be set up in type.

These three high seniors are learning the importance of accuracy and dependability required in the newspaper profession.

Low Senior Class

The success of the low senior class this term was greatly due to the fine leadership of their president, athletic Don Ellis, and of blonde Louise Hughes, vice president; dark-eyed Evelyn Galli, secretary; and Claire Conner, treasurer. Lorraine Trussell and Tere-sina Podesta were capable assistants.

On Low Senior Day freckled girls in bright gingham dresses, becoming braids and big hair bows, and boys in colorful shirts and jeans, gave the appearance of being "Down on the Farm," which was the theme of the day. Included in the gay events was a basketball game among the low senior boys' registries; the "Vultures," sterling basketballers of Mr. Chapman's registry 303 and Mr. Vanderlaan's registry 315, won the game from the "Hamburgers" of Miss Cook's 301, and Mr. Leith's registry G5. Leading boisterous yells and acting as "live-wires" for the basketball game were student body Yell Leader Warren Lowenbein, aided by the popular and energetic Bob Amore. As a successful climax, a "Down on the Farm" dance was held in the girls' gym after school. With Louise Hughes as chairman, and Royce Delmarter, Bob Jarboe, Fay Malouf, Bob Amore, Caesar Abate, George Bertram, George Capanis, Jack Dooling, John Henderson, Adeline Kenealy, and Barbara Lee as members, the dance committee deserves a great deal of credit for putting the dance on record as one of Washington's most successful.

Bob Jarboe, with the helpful aid of class sponsor Mrs. Denny, was responsible for the class project, the maintenance of a high standard of attendance. He kept the daily attendance record of all registries on the chart by the office. The low seniors actively participated in various other activities in cooperation with the rest of the school, and completed a most successful Spring '41 term after selecting their rings and sweaters in anticipation of their high senior term.

High Junior Class

Never before in the history of George Washington High School have the juniors put over a better rally or such a Junior Day as was put on Friday, April 25. The theme that was featured for the day was "A Trip to the Tropics" and the torrid atmosphere was emphasized by brightly colored leis worn around the necks of all enthusiastic juniors. High junior officers, President Jack O'Brien, Vice President Katherine Lawrence, Secretary Barbara Schlegal and Executive Council Members Jim Billings and Ted Harris, with the aid of Student Body President Johnnie Contos, found outstanding talent to entertain the student body.

Guest artist and master of ceremonies on the rally was Max Liss. Incidentally, Max is the youngest M.C. on the Coast.

High Junior Class

Introduced by Max Liss was four-and-a-half-year-old queen of the Richmond District May Day festivities. Talent for the show was so outstanding that encores were frequent. Our genial master of ceremonies also put on an amusing skit demonstrating the techniques of dunking a doughnut. A duo of juvenile dancers also entertained the student body. Truthfully, the Junior Day rally was a huge success.

On Monday, April 28, the juniors challenged the seniors to play baseball. Even though the juniors had Jack O'Brien, star baseball player on their team, the score was Seniors 2, Juniors 0.

This term has been one chock full of fun and success for this outstanding junior class. We hope they will have the same success next term when they will be high and mighty seniors!

Low Junior Class

With "A Trip to the Tropics" as the theme of one of the most excellent days and rallies of the term, the low junior class together with the high juniors, proved themselves important factors in the building and maintaining of the school's morale. May 25 was the date of this especially entertaining rally which was marked by the fact that it was the first Washington rally with entirely imported talent. The master of ceremonies presented a violinist, dance team, impersonator and "doughnut dunker." Students of the junior class came to school wearing leis, flower print skirts and tropical flowers in their hair.

Much of the success of this Junior Day was due to the student leadership of class President Natale Gari-

High Sophomore Class

Besides being the largest class in the school, the high sophomores are making a name for themselves in school activities. This term, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Clayton, and with the cooperation of Prexy Robert Smith, youngest member of the Eagle Society; Vice President Socrates Nicholson; Secretary Stan Perkins; and the executive council members, Doris Norman and Gerard Rhine, they made an equal success of the safety drive, their project for this term.

They started their campaign by having notices in the bulletin at least three times a week. Secondly, they had posters made, and posted them at different places throughout the school. The Eagle Society gave their full cooperation and took charge of the second floor, which had always been the "bottleneck" of traffic.

They also had the cooperation of the traffic boys who stayed inside the building at lunch time. Lastly, they had diagrams made of the school showing the places where the most care should be taken. These diagrams were posted in the halls and on the various stairways. By this safety campaign the high sophs have made the school much safer for themselves and for their classmates.

High sophomores can be found participating in everything. They have contributed both to drama and sports. There was a large turnout of high sophs on the championship lightweight basketball team, and a great deal of interest was shown also in track, swimming, and tennis. As far as drama is concerned, who knows?

Low Sophomore Class

"Sure, this school is clean," was the cry of the low sophomores after a victorious battle against the forces of paper and dust. All this cleanliness was accomplished during the Sophomore Clean Up Week during the past term.

Under the leadership of Prexy Pete Desalernos, Vice Prexy Bill McCarger, and Secretary Frances Lent, this term's low sophs went places in all that they attempted. These officers were ably assisted by Charles Durand and Maxwell Keith, Executive Council members.

Serving as low soph sponsor for the first time was Miss O'Leary, who was the force behind the activities of the class.

more event, Clean Up Week, were representatives from the eight registries: Jessel Bush, John Steffen, Morton Cohn, Gerald Griffin, Lois Scarborough, Gertrude Schalow, Martha Heide, Arthur Rude, and Harry Strauss. John Steffen comes to Washington as president of Presidio's last class.

After their initial dance, the Senior-Soph Reception, the sophomores were regular attendants of all of Washington's dances.

Give these sophomores a hand; as the newest members of Washington's student body, they have fulfilled all that is expected of them, and will some day look back on their first years in George Washington as a beginning of a new life.

SURVEYOR

For which democratic privileges do the students of George Washington High School feel most grateful?

The Surveyor's survey reveals that 38 per cent believe the greatest privilege of an American citizen is the freedom of speech guaranteed in the Constitution; 19 per cent think it is freedom to worship as they wish; 15 per cent, having a voice in the selection of their life's work; 8 per cent, the right to a thorough education; and 4 per cent, the right of initiative and referendum.

"Greatest single obligation of living in the United States" is living and working honestly, say 35 per cent of Washingtonians; 19 per cent believe it is obeying laws of the country; 18 per cent, educating oneself; 10 per cent voting for the best qualified candidates; 8 per cent, paying taxes; 7 per cent, fighting in case of war; and 3 per cent, being philanthropic.

Young high school students evidently realize the benefits of democracy. Here at George Washington they work, play, and exercise their duties as members of the student body just as in a few years they will work, play, and exercise their duties as citizens of this great democracy of ours to carry our American heritage forward.

Honor Societies—

With continuous and loyal service to the school as their constant aim, the Girls' Service Society has completed another successful term. Girls are elected to the society upon the recommendation of teachers, and after careful investigation of their qualifications by the G.S.S. nominating committee. Candidates for membership must have high scholastic records, good citizenship, and must have shown that they are capable of rendering unselfish service to their school.

Sponsored by Miss Eleanor Jackson, girls' vice principal, and capably lead by President Mary Jane Linkins, Vice President Lorraine Trussell, and Secretary Ruth Mangan, the organization actively participated in many George Washington High School affairs this term.

Especially successful and beneficial to the entire school was the Spring campaign for a "cleaner and safer" campus. To attain this high goal, capable girls of the society were appointed to serve on various committees. Each girl gave up part of her lunch period to serve on these committees. Some supervised the conduct in the lunch rooms while others helped to control and direct the fifth and sixth period traffic on the first floor. The more orderly school which has resulted from this campaign is an example of the outstanding efficiency of the G.S.S.

Members of the Girls' Service Society assisted the Eagle Society this term in keeping order at the assemblies and rallies. The G.S.S. also sponsored several interesting assembly programs, such as the presentation of Mr. O'Brien from the State Employment Bureau who spoke on careers and occupations for girls.

Installation of the new members of the G.S.S. took place at the beginning of the term. A dinner was held at the Sigmund Stern Grove, to which parents and teachers of the girls were invited. The newly elected members who were initiated at the dinner are Rosalie

The Eagle Society, which is the leading boy's organization of George Washington, has completed its ninth term of existence with the end of this semester.

Under the very able direction of Mr. Lloyd Leith,

The society this term was piloted by Howard Shields, the hard-working president; Louis Franz, the industrious vice president; and Howard Peterson, the capable secretary.

Nine of the most able members the society has ever had will leave George Washington this term. They are Howard Shields, Louis Franz, Don Linville, John Contos, Bill de Recat, Warren Townsend, Marvin Miller, Dick Stone, and Charles Hardeman.

A barbecue rounded out the activities of the society for the term and further proved the Eagle Society is one of the most helpful organizations of George Washington High School.

Membership in the California Scholarship Federation is for those students who make ten grade points during the report card period. Three points are allotted for A's, one for B's. In addition, the student's citizenship must be entirely satisfactory. To the students who maintain that scholarship average for six semesters, a total of eighteen report card periods, the Seal is awarded. They are graduated cum laude and, as life members of the Federation, are entitled to wear the Sealbearer's pin, the golden Lamp of Learning.

SURVEYOR

With an eye to the happier future of America, Dottie Danziger and her staff have sought to remind Washingtonians that their country is one that any boy or girl can well be proud of and whose threatened democracy should be defended not only physically but mentally and emotionally. The sincerity of their wish to show American democracy among Washington students has produced a Surveyor they hope will be well worth reading and enjoying.

F. Kurant, J. Connor, F. Strugnell, D. Danziger, E. Gitschel

Exemplifying the spirit of cooperation and American democracy, the staff of the Surveyor worked in full accord with each other, striving to compile the finest journal yet put out by George Washington. The editorial staff, headed by Dorothy Danziger, editor, included Lois Clawson, senior editor; and Eleanor Little, assistant senior editor. Publicity for the Surveyor was conducted by Caloise Robinson and Maxine Bulski. Employed writing stories were Gloria Fontes, Gloria Birtell, Helen Custer, Ruth Maltzer, and Pat McCarthy. Newcomers in the land of printer's ink and galley proofs are Carolyn Crouch, Rita Kaides, Marilyn Cutler, and Anita Dougherty, whose work has shown that they will be valued workers for the Surveyor in the future.

On the business end, an essential part of the Surveyor, are Business Manager Freda Kurant, Advertising Manager Faye Strugnell, and Eleanor Gitschel, Circulation Manager.

It is interesting to note that the high offices on both the editorial and business staff were filled this term by girls. Thus it seems that journalism is a rising profession for women in this modern world. However, a great deal of credit must go to artists Lew Posich, Monroe Winston, and Paul Knudsen who have supplied our division pages and cartoons.

In addition the surveyor staff offers its sincere thanks to its sponsor, Miss Jane Cook, whose help has been invaluable, and to Miss Eleanor Parsons, circulation; Miss Haidee Tobriner, art; Mr. Thomas Gates, advertising; and Miss Marie Kirwin, senior sponsor.

Surveyor and Eagle

The official news organ of George Washington High, the "Eagle," is published six times each term by the students of the journalism class. The publication is a member of the National Scholastic Press Association and of Quill and Scroll, scholastic journal honor society. In addition to these honors the "Eagle" has earned the reputation of having a competent staff that obtains a complete coverage of every news source on the "hilltop."

In the past term the Eagle was edited by Catherine Parac, with the assistance of Don Birkenseer, managing editor; Patricia McCarthy, assistant editor; Jim O'Connor, city editor; and Jim Turner, sports editor.

The policy of the paper has always been to devote space to each deserving organization and activity sponsored as a school project. The Eagle's news stories are written to inform students of vital school happenings; features are inserted to awaken the school populace to the pulse of life; and editorials are composed to stir the interest of readers toward educational and social problems. Each news story is checked for accuracy and news value. The features, articles, special items, poetry, and sports stories are composed with the purpose of interesting the entire student body.

Under the capable management of Gloria Birtell, advertising manager; Marilyn Coleman, business manager; and Beverlie Mirsky, circulation manager, the Eagle's business problems were efficiently handled.

"The Cat and the Canary"

Sliding panels, disappearing bodies, voodooism, and other mysterious goings-on were the order of the evening of May 29, when the seniors presented "The Cat and the Canary" by John Willard, in the auditorium.

The plot concerns the fortune of an eccentric old man, Cyrus West, who hated all his living relatives. He stipulated that his will was to be read twenty years after his death in the library of his mansion. His home he left in the care of a voodoo woman from the West Indies.

The curtain parts on the West library. Cyrus West's lawyer, Mr. Crosby, receives the six surviving relatives and proceeds to read the will. The palatial house and entire fortune were willed to Annabelle West, a lovely young artist. There was, however, a codicil to the will. If the heiress be found of unsound mind or body the estate would go to the next unknown heir. Mr. Crosby learns of a plot to frighten Annabelle but when he tries to warn her he is murdered and his body hidden in a mysterious passageway behind a sliding panel. Suspicion is thrown on the West Indian housekeeper, who has acted very strangely. A guard from an insane asylum claims he is looking for an escaped inmate who goes about clawing people like a cat. After a harrowing night with doors banging in the wind and the discovery of Crosby's body, the family prepare to leave. Paul Jones, one of the family, remains with Annabelle, who is almost ill with fright, while the housekeeper goes for a doctor. Alone in the big house they are startled by a noise from a back room. Paul goes to investigate and does not return. The guard from the asylum appears and leads a crouching figure wearing a horrid mask, from the corner, whom he claims is the cat man from the asylum. With a quick movement, Annabelle darts forward and pulls the mask from the figure. To her amazement she finds it to be her cousin Charlie Wilder. She discovers them to be the murderers of Mr. Crosby and the "villains of the piece." She is rescued from their clutches by the appearance of Paul and another cousin and all ends happily with Paul and Annabelle declaring their love.

The cast included Anita Dougherty and Ruth Wermus as the West Indian housekeeper, Lee Grayson and Charles Loch as the lawyer; Collins Orton as Harry Blyther; Mary Jane Linkins and Barbara Wilder as Cecily Young; Rae Ross and Christiane Lamoreux as Susan Silsky; Alan Thompson and Gordon Diard as Charlie Wilder; Lew Posich and Edmond Beady as Paul Jones; Mary Frances Stiles and Ruth Maltzer as Annabelle West; Bill deRecat and Bowen Bridges as the guard at the asylum and Harvey Ellsworth as the doctor.

RADIO

Under the direction of Miss Helen Archer, and Miss Margaret Heaton, the first radio script of the year, "Francis Scott Key" was presented over NBC January 12. The script was presented in the form of a narrative with dramatized incidents to highlight the story. The cast included Walter Bien as the narrator, Gordon Hoyt, Alan Thompson, Dick Curits, Clifford Abrams, Fleta Alexander, Janice Goldstein, Lennox Cinnamon, Bertram Silva, Donald Geddes, Arthur Blum, Sanford Harris, Lee Grayson, Elaine Fairchild, Waldo Putzker, and understudy Gerry Dolinger.

The chorus, under the supervision of Mrs. Swanson, and the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Knott, stressed Americanism in their part of the program.

The radio script, "George Washington, the Young Surveyor" was aired over NBC February 21. The members of the cast were Meyer Slivka, Alan Thompson, Lillian Rado, Kay Rucker, Herbert Hoffman, Allan Blumenfield, Ray Wertheimer, Mildred Lazarus, Warren Weinstock, and George Abramopoulos.

"Youth On Its Way," a radio script dealing with counseling in the San Francisco high schools, was broadcast by transcription over NBC April 20. This script was written and directed by Mr. Waddington Blair, one of Washington's counselors.

Members of the cast were Anita Dougherty, Ruth Maltzer, Lillian Rado, Mildred Lazarus, Alan Thompson, Arthur Ker-moyan, Herbert Hoffman, Dean Cohen, Franklin Braun, and Virginia Howard.

The last broadcast was the presentation of "Lieutenant Rowan Reporting to General Garcia," aired April 23 over Station KGO in honor of Colonel Rowan's 84th birthday.

The cast included Don Rainey, Manual Crug, Lew Posich, Karl Willrader, Ray Wertheimer, Allan Blumenfield, Mary Sevilla, and Katherine Penkoff.

Music and Melodies

CHORAL

Musically inclined students of George Washington High School have a fine chance to improve under the able direction of Mrs. Myrtle Swanson. Never before have so many talented singers and musicians, group and soloist, presented music club entertainments, and the spring concert was an innovation.

Real enthusiasm is the basis for the unusual success enjoyed by the George Washington Music Club. Thirty-five talented members meet once a week to study symphonies or concerts and to engage in impromptu musical discussions. Programs featuring musicians and vocalists of the club are presented on Monday. Besides these regular activities, the members have a party at the end of every term.

Officers of the Washington Music Club are Maurice Euphrat, president; Elaine Rambo, vice president; and Sally Golumb, secretary.

Girls' advanced and mixed advanced choirs will sing at the graduation. The mixed chorus has sung several performances since January, as well as singing background music for "A Message to Garcia" and the "Frances Scott Key" radio scripts. Both groups performed at Washington's first concert held in the auditorium May 9, the proceeds of which were to be used to buy gowns for the choral groups. The girls' chorus sang for the evening meetings of the P.-T.A.

At the end of each term students from the beginners girls' chorus and the mixed chorus are selected for advanced work. This honor is the goal of all music-minded students and its many opportunities are well worth working for.

ORCHESTRA

Masters of rhapsodies and rhythms, George Washington's school orchestra has lent an air of culture to our generally "jive-mad" school. Genial Mr. Marion Knott, director, has shown us that he can create out of thirty-five talented students an orchestra deserving of high praise.

Evidence of the success of the band is not hard to find. Its appearance on nearly every major broadcast given by Washington this term is enough to demonstrate this fact. But further proof can be supplied by any person who heard the orchestra play at the recent Spring Concert. It was at this concert that the height of musical attainment by a high school orchestra was reached. The probable reason for the success of this organization lies not only in the fact that the students are all accomplished musicians but also because each student has learned to give complete cooperation to his leader and thus the whole orchestra is bound together by one common wish to create music that is real music.

As the musical background in Washington's numerous appearances on the radio, as a "pepper-up" at rallies, as dance music at school dances, and a mood music for graduation and the Senior Play, this cooperative group has become an accepted and necessary part of George Washington's popularity. And as a reward for their efficiency and talent there is the appreciation of not only students but of teachers, and parents and others who have heard and applauded George Washington's fine school orchestra.

Pausing to refresh themselves, Mr. Taylor and Mr. Cummings take time out at the Mission All City Dance where students from every city high school enjoyed dancing and music. Clair Connor shows how Lou Sachs hurt her ankle by falling up stairs, which may be against the laws of gravity, but as Lou says, "We can do everything at Washington." That pretty red head carrying Len Williams' books is Sylvia Herbert. Crowds signing their names for Surveyor pictures show that the term is well on its way and "the best Surveyor yet" will soon be sent to press. Looks as though the students find the lens more attractive than the pens!

The more intellectual influence at Washington's All City dance was found in the teachers present. Sergeant Feliciano is seen talking to Mr. Knott, Miss Cullinan, and Mrs. Logan, while the students gather in the background to dance. Jack Ginsberg was one of those poor misguided sophomores who believed the signs regarding a fourth floor and set out to find it by trying all the doors, including the one to the janitor's closet. Pretty Ruth Maltzer, student body secretary, was just sitting waiting for her portrait when "achoo" and the camera clicked at the same time. But blonde Marilyn Coleman was found primping her hair. The results? Look for yourself.

All American Athletes

Winning championship honors for the second consecutive year, the Eagle varsity five fought good battles for the honor of their school.

Washington, 37; Galileo, 22

Starting the season off in a sensational manner, George Washington High School overwhelmed Galileo High.

Werner (Whitey) Strahlendorf, scored ten points for high honors. Ernest Mann's rebounding work stood out as did Don Ellis' and Louis Franz' shooting from long range.

Washington, 33; Lincoln, 12

Playing the hapless Lincoln team on an off day, the Washingtonians ran away with the score.

The first three quarters were dull and slow, but the fourth period brought the Washington team back into the game. Led by Marvin Miller who scored nine points, Washington scored 14 straight points in the fourth quarter.

Washington, 34; St. Ignatius, 33

Washington's title hopes lost no luster in the hair-raising 34 to 33 decision over St. Ignatius.

The Eagles proved that they had what it takes by coming from behind to nip St. Ignatius. Marvin Miller, Ernie Mann, and Don Ellis swisherodeo ten points each.

Washington, 19; Polytechnic, 23

Breaking a winning streak of 11 straight league victories, Washington High fell before a great Poly High team, 23 to 19.

The game was packed with thrills. The teams played an overtime period which favored Poly by four points.

Washington, 35; Mission, 20

Washington, under the power of a sensational burst of speed, poured basketballs through the hoop in an uncanny way to sweep Mission aside. Marvin Miller, Ernie Mann, and Dick Stone starred.

Heart. At half time the score was 15 to 14 in Sacred Heart's favor.

In the second half Marvin Miller ran hog wild to score nine points.

Washington, 24; Balboa, 17

Balboa started off the game in a blaze of glory, scoring ten points to Washington's five.

The Washington five came out onto the battlefield for the second half with vengeance in their eyes. First Dick Stone scored, then Marvin Miller, then Phil Harris, and Washington was on its way to victory. Louis Franz scored a set shot and then Miller went to work on a series of three field goals that put Washington in front to stay.

Washington, 28; Commerce, 20

Washington High rode on to victory against Commerce with Don Ellis scoring from every angle, ringing up 11 points for high point honors.

Half-time score was eight to six in favor of Washington. Three field goals by Ellis and one by Franz. The third quarter see-sawed back and forth; late in the last quarter Ernie Mann ran wild and scored three baskets in succession to insure victory for Washington.

Washington, 29; Lowell, 27

Fists were flying and balls were floating through the air as Washington High defeated Lowell High by the score of 29 to 27 for the championship of the A.A.A.

"All City" Marvin Miller started the slaughter by sinking a long one thrown from the side court. Cherry, of Lowell, came back to score a 35-foot set shot and the game was tied up at two to two. The score went back and forth with a set shot giving Washington a two-point advantage at half time.

Lowell took the lead in the third quarter, 23 to 20, with shots made by tiny Tommy Lew. Paul Wallace scored on a shot under the basket and repeated by sinking a 35-footer. Lowell again tied it; with but ten seconds left to play, Marvin Miller scored the two points that won for Washington.

Lightweights Come Close

Proving themselves one of the best ball clubs in the league, the Eagle lightweights for the fourth consecutive time came in second place, tied this time with Poly and Commerce. The Eaglets had an in and out season until the last four games, when they executed one of the best brands of basketball seen in 130-pound competition.

Scramble after a jumped ball in the Poly game

Losing their first game in the last ten seconds to Galileo 31 to 30, the lightweights were given an outside chance to end up near the top division. The "30's" came back to win the next game by beating the Lincoln "Honest Abes" 31 to 20.

In the third contest, the lightweights again went on to win over an inspired St. Ignatius five in a 20 to 19 thriller.

Washington really had a sad day when they met Poly, for the Eaglets also lost to the Parrot machine. Final score was 30 to 18. The Eagles lost to the Mission five, 40 to 30.

Then the 130' began to roll. They used every trick and tactic in the books. Sacred Heart fell in their blitzkrieg, 17 to 13. Balboa collapsed to a 38 to 26 thrashing. The greatly favored Commerce team also bowed to the terrific onslaught 21 to 20. The final drive came on March 6, when the lightweights made their rival Lowell five sink under to the tune of 33 to 24, thus winding up their season in a much-deserved second place.

Baseball Nine Show Promise

Under Mr. Hunter, their new coach, the baseball team fared comparatively better than they have in the past two years.

Washington inaugurated its fourth baseball season by bowing to the hard-hitting Galileo team, 19 to 1. In their second league start, the light-hitting Eagles were shut out by St. Ignatius, 9 to 0. With a revised lineup, the boys were literally smothered by the defending champion, Mission, 16 to 2. Many errors in the infield contributed to this defeat. Against their traditional rivals, Lowell, Washington got its first victory since the 1938 season. Although they were limited to three hits, the Eagles capitalized on Lowell errors in the first inning, and scored five runs. The final score was 6 to 3. In their next two games the Eagles lost to Sacred Heart and Balboa by identical scores, 11 to 4.

Against potent Commerce, the Eagles played their best game of the season. Although they were beaten by the score of 6 to 5, the boys showed that they have more power at the plate than they have shown in their past league games, and behind Willard McConnell they made exactly no errors. In their last game the team just didn't have any fight left and they fell before the amazingly inconsistent Polytechnic team, 5 to 0.

After their regular season ended, the Eagles played a series of practice games. In these games next year's team played. They beat South City, 9 to 8, St. Ignatius, 10 to 3, and Tamalpais, 7 to 4.

In the American Legion League, six boys of this year's team are playing first string. The team they play for is the Washington Post. This team so far has been very successful.

Prospects for the next year seem bright as there will be many boys returning. In our last two league games there was only one senior on the first string, and many sophomores and juniors were sitting on the bench. Among the returning players will be Adolph Bacigalupi, who was slated to play shortstop this year before he broke his ankle.

Varsity Track Men

Badly handicapped by the loss of several of their key men through sickness and ineligibility, the Eagle lightweight and unlimited track teams placed sixth and seventh, respectively, in their fifth annual A.A.A. track and field meet.

The Washington varsity was jinxed by misfortune. First bad break of the season came when Eugene Kelly was declared ineligible. Kelly had been high jumping around 6 feet 1 inch up to the time of the discovery of his ineligibility. Next stars to be lost to the team were Bill Hughes, Lew Posich, and Ed Malouf. All of these boys were expected to star; Hughes and Malouf in the sprints, and Posich in the broad jump.

In the meet itself, the unlimited team was held to one place. That place, however, introduced one of prepdom's greatest high jumpers in Fred Venker, Eagle star. Venker out-jumped his nearest competitor by four inches with a leap of 6 feet 1½ inches. In a try for the record, Venker barely missed but those who saw him jump have no doubt but that the record will be his next year. A boy who was a popular basketball player may upset the dope bucket, however. This boy, Kelly, has equalled Venker in every dual meet this term. This will give Washington perhaps two of the decade's best prep high jumpers in one season.

In the sprints Washington had three boys who reached the semi-finals. These boys were Ben Messer, Howie Shields, and Bob Sutherland. Sutherland is a sophomore and should improve greatly if he would concentrate more on his form.

Another sophomore, John Steffen, may develop into the best broadjumper Washington has ever had. This year his best jump was over 21 feet and there is no telling how far he can do with more experience.

Such competitors as Jim Bauman, Hughes, Venker, Kelly, Steffen, and Sutherland will bear the brunt of next year's varsity team.

Washington's lightweight track team came through with a sixth place in the annual city meet at Kezar Stadium.

Optimistically, Coach Scheffin notes that of all the boys who placed in the meet only one will be missing from next year's team. This year's team was composed almost entirely of promising young sophomores, and we look to next year with expectant eyes.

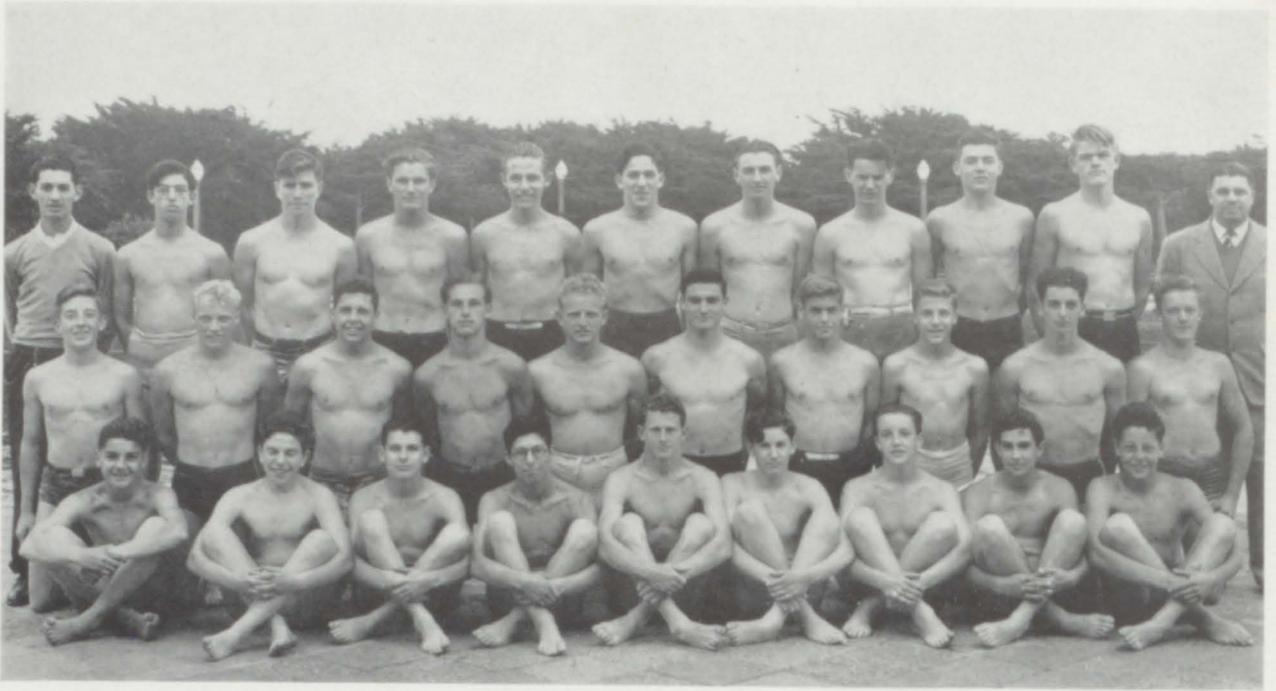

Surprise of the meet came when George Kapkin won the 130-pound high jump with a leap of 5 feet 8½ inches. This was a surprise because Kapkin is ordinarily a broadjumper, and a good one at that. Kapkin will return next year as an unlimited, and it will be interesting to see how many points he will earn for Washington in the two events.

In the track events Washington was led by Bill Barth, who placed second in the 130-pound 100-yard dash; Dick Frankel, fourth place in the 120-pound 100-yard dash; Charles Zurn, fourth place in the 120-pound high jump; and the 120-pound relay team came up with another fourth place.

Last year Frankel took second, but with stiffer competition he dropped down two places. He has another year left and should place higher next year. Zurn is only a sophomore and will undoubtedly improve in the next two years. Such boys as Gil Tong, Ernesto Eusctan, Young Chui, Phil Shifs, Henry Obayashi, and Guy Carruthers will form the crux of Coach Scheffin's lightweight team for 1942. The year will be a good one according to present indications.

Lowell won the varsity championship with St. Ignatius a close second. The novelty lay in the fact that, just prior to the last event, the Indians actually ranked second, trailing St. Ignatius 35 to 34. Victory in the finale gave Lowell 44, St. Ignatius 39, Commerce 21, Galileo 17, Poly 15, and Washington 10.

Star of the meet was Galileo's Roddy Andrews. For the second consecutive year he won both unlimited free style sprints, the 50 and 100. In the latter, he established one of the day's three records. Roddy's century time was 56.9, and the old mark was 57.0.

Other records were posted by St. Ignatius' unlimited and Lowell 110-pound medley relay teams.

For Washington, points were scored by the medley relay team composed of Louis Franz, Duke Hardeman and Bill Green, which placed fourth, and by the 200-yard relay team composed of Edward Markovich, Bill Pruett, Phil Erlanger, and Bill Green, which took third place.

Washington lightweights placed third in their division. Max Seigel of Washington was the individual star, scoring a first in the 50-yard breast stroke and a second in the diving. Point scorers for the lightweights of Washington were Max Seigel; Phil Damner with a third in the 50-yard breast stroke; Frank Johnson with a third in the 50-yard back stroke.

In a special event before the meet, Olympic Club's Emmett Cashin, a St. Ignatius grad, cracked two American records in the breast stroke. He paddled 40 yards in 6.06 and 500 yards in 6.56.6, former records being 6.08.8 and 7.04.

TENNIS

Out of the spotlight of athletic acclaim firmly held by the basketball and football teams, there stands a group of boys who play tennis. They play and they play for George Washington. They are coached by the head of the athletic department, Coach Fagin.

The Spring of '41 had been wet and the Eagle "racketmen" found that rain and flooded tennis courts produced little time for practice. Unfavorable weather cancelled a practice match with Lowell but a match with St. Ignatius was played, the Eagles breaking even. Brighter weather and the repainting of lines on the tennis courts in the lower courtyard gave the team more practice on better courts.

The climax of the Spring term came with the A.A.A. Tennis Meet held in Golden Gate Park; the singles playing on May 19, the doubles on May 21. The '41 tennis players were: Singles—Warren Lowenbein, Dick Grenfell, Carlin Oliphant, and Ted Harris. The doubles—Alan Wollenberg, Ed Kaplan, Jim Billings, Bill Rippe, Warren Jacobs, Jim O'Brien, Harold Winans, and Jack Weiner.

The continued success of the Eagle basketballers in '41 has been due mainly to the efforts of Coach Leith. Mr. Leith also coached the swimming team. Baseball and soccer were supervised by Coach Hunter. Coach Fagin had charge of golf and tennis. Track and football were coached by Mr. Scheffin. These four men in addition to coaching the various athletic teams which bring glory to the name of George Washington, also daily train hundreds of Washingtonians in physical care and development through sports, exercises, and hygiene.

The factor which has most effect upon spirit of a school is athletics. And closely associated with athletics and school spirit are Washington's yell leaders. Head yell leader for the Spring term has been Harold Lister. With his two assistants, Gerald Rhine and Warren Lowenbein, Harold has led a student body with a powerful spirit to support its teams on the athletic fields.

With the expert help of Gertie Gazette and her ace detective, Sally Snooper, the Girls' Athletic Association got off to a bang-up start with their sign-up rally held in the auditorium, February 18. A little booklet, ably and cleverly executed by "Prexy" Nancy Gallagher, was given to each girl at the rally. It gave compact data on the G.A.A., presented by one Gertie Gazette, a confirmed G.A.A. rooter.

A special treat for the girls at the rally was introduced by "M.C." Elaine Jackson, in the person of Virginia Wolfendon, seventh ranking women's national tennis player.

After a victorious basketball season, Coach Fagin presents Coach Leith with the winner's plaque to be placed in Washington's trophy case for the second consecutive year. Members of the field crew and student body officers watch the ceremony with keen interest. One of the featured acts of many rallies during the term was the team of Provo and Kincaid. Their cowboy and hillbilly songs were the talk of the school. Keith and Bob are shown as they appeared at the victory rally. A typical scene during basketball season featured Eagle ticket salesmen. Howard Peterson, Charles Hardeman, Lew Posich and Howard Shields are shown trying some high-pressure salesmanship on Sylvia Zeidler. Here's Dr. Clinchey, guest speaker at the G.S.S., Eagle Society rally.

"A triple sky rocket for the team and make it loud!" yells Harold Lister as he swings into action during the Balboa rally. Student body officers of both schools and members of the team obviously are supporting Harold. "Keep your legs straight and touch your toes." It's hard work but the boys know how to do it and keep fit. Boys' gym classes take regular exercises as well as marching, sports, and hygiene. Bill deRecat was seen practicing "just in case." Please don't worry, it wasn't necessary. Washington students helped Bill win the bet by selling more tickets to the games and boosting game attendance. Pat Bradley, Eleanor Rittler, and Theodora Tjovenos did a swell job leading yells for G.A.A. affairs.

Burying the Indian has become a tradition at Washington; that is, as much a tradition as two victories will permit. But Washington students intend to make the burial a yearly ceremony after the Lowell game (provided we win). Democracies practice freedom to vote among their other privileges and America's future voters try out their power at a class election. The long trek across the stadium, more commonly known as a funeral march, showed a long line of weeping Eagles. Correction: weeping with joy. Lois Clawson pecks away at her trusty typewriter in the Editorial Room getting ready for the deadline which, you can tell by the worried look on her face, is mighty close. ### R.O.T.C.

Since its inception five years ago, there have been few high schools who can point to a more proficient R.O.T.C. unit than can George Washington High School. This organization has surged forward with a cooperative faculty and sympathetic student body to bring its share of glory and honor to the name of George Washington High School.

Comprising about 250 cadets each semester, the unit is a battalion composed of four rifle companies and a band. The first four periods of the day are occupied by companies A, B, C, and D, respectively. The unit is commanded and drilled by cadet officers who are chosen from the ranks. Uniforms and equipment are furnished by the War Department.

This Spring, due chiefly to the patience and untiring work of Sergeant Feliciano, battalion instructor, the unit has continued in its climb toward ever greater honors. The five-man rifle team in competition with high school and college units throughout the western states took second place in the Ninth Corps Area Intercollegiate Rifle Matches. In the State Gallery Championships, held in the National Guard Armory, honors went to Cadet Sergeants Louis North and James Harvill. The rifle team earned big gold medals. In May came the annual Federal Inspection. This inspection is the event of the year. The goal: Honor School; the price: extensive and tedious study and drill in all phases of R.O.T.C. training. In 1939 the unit reached its goal of Honor School, and the personnel wore the small red star on their right sleeves.

In 1940 the unit obtained the rating of Excellent. This year the unit hopes again to sew the small red star on its sleeves.

aid which are covered extensively during the winter months, and physical drill combat formations and infantry drill which take place outside, were subject to the careful inspection of an officer of the United States Army.

For two successive years the George Washington R.O.T.C. battalion has won possession of the coveted Commandant's Cup awarded to the unit which drills with the most precision and proficiency in the performance of the battalion parade. This competition is among all of the high schools of San Francisco. In 1941 the Eagle battalion, facing strong competition, again strives to retain possession of the cup.

There are also within the battalion two cups awarded at the end of each semester to the best drilling platoon and to the best squad. The units were carefully judged by Cadet Lt. Col. Keith Provoo and his staff.

On the 30th of May, Memorial Day, the battalion marched in the annual parade through the Presidio National Cemetery in honor of the soldier dead.

During the ordinary R.O.T.C. week, one to two days are devoted to theory instruction indoors while the remainder of the week is devoted to practical drill and marching in the lower yard. Thursday is Uniform Day and one period in the morning the cadets assemble and go through the battalion and parade ceremonies. Winter and early spring see more stress placed upon theory instruction due to inclement weather, while during the fall term, outside drill is stressed.

The modern indoor rifle range is the scene of target practice by Eagle riflemen. During the after-school hours the crack of .22 target rifles is heard from within the confines of the armory and one knows the bull's-eye is taking its punishment.

In the summer of 1939, the basic drill regulations of the United States Army were radically modified and hence the R.O.T.C. conformed to the new regulations. The World War type eight-man squad disappeared, and in its place came the streamlined squad which was formed with a sergeant in command of twelve men, the men being in a single file. Intervals became greater. An added movement was incorporated into the manual of arms. The new regulations have been lauded by the cadets because of their simplicity and practicability. Also changed have been the uniforms of the cadet officers. The officers now wear the regulation R.O.T.C. uniform with the addition of a Sam Browne belt and buttons to denote their rank. New sweeping changes in all the cadet uniforms have been foreshadowed for the fall semester of 1941.

This term the R.O.T.C. held the semi-annual Military Ball to which the student body went as guests of the battalion.

The Saber Club which meets on Thursday mornings is composed wholly of officers of the battalion. Its functions are primarily of a social character.

Officers in the R.O.T.C. have also attained prominence in other fields of school endeavor. Valedictorians have been R.O.T.C. members, and the last several colonels of the R.O.T.C. have also been presidents of the Washington Chapter of the California Scholarship Federation, including this term's battalion commander, Keith Provoo. From the R.O.T.C. several cadets have gone to the nation's military and naval academies.

Though it is primarily military in character, the R.O.T.C. molds character and develops leadership and self-confidence. An R.O.T.C. student is a better citizen.

MISSION AT 20th

Vim, vigor and an overabundance of vitality are the chief requisites of a high school yell leader. Harold Lister, Washington's red-headed spirit rouser, is as peppy as the hue of his hair and as full of life as the color of his scarlet trousers. Low Senior Lister really knows how to keep that Washington locomotive really puffing!

Harold's many friends will be glad to know that Mr. Lister will be back at Washington again next term, this time as a H-12.

The epitome of physical perfection, masculine gender!!! This flattering list of tongue twisters is describing none other than Washington's track star, gridiron hero, Eagle Society president, and all-around swell fellow—Howie Shields.

Howie will attend Santa Clara College next term to study business. It is hoped that he will have time to continue his very successful athletic career.

Sweet, efficient, ready for any occasion. Now you have a picture of Mary Jane Linkins, good-looking G.S.S. president. Typical of what the high school girl should be, Mary is shown in the above cartoon. Her smiling face in the halls, at the rallies, and at dances has helped to make the term pass faster. A prominent member of the G.A.A., a member of the first principal's cabinet, and vice prexy of the L-12 class, Mary represents the higher standards of school life.

Despite coaching a losing baseball team, Coach Hunter still wears a friendly smile for the Surveyor artist. Always ready to help students perfect their baseball, Coach Hunter managed a squad which showed great promise toward the end of the season. Sickness, bad breaks, and injuries handicapped the teams. The coach expects better breaks next season with a more experienced team.

"QUALITY SAUSAGE SINCE 1891"

GEORGE WASHINGTON knew well the value of preparedness when he said:
"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

But in America peace, too, demands preparedness—the preparedness that comes from enlightened and educated youth trained for leadership in the democratic way and guided by the faith which inspired the founding Fathers.

A Friend of George Washington High School

PK

Click-clack-space-clang! This might well be the introduction to a song about Dottie Danziger, diminutive tycoon of the Washington Surveyor. Dottie is well known to most Eagle students as the gal who spends half of her time behind the typewriter and the other half doing those million and one little jobs required in the producing of a yearbook.

Dottie will attend U.C. next term where she will try hard for a position on the California Blue and Gold.

The man behind the scenes may be a technician or a stage hand, but the man responsible for the G.W.B.S. is none other than Mr. Cummings. Besides attending to the regular duties as Washington's principal, Mr. Cummings has made radio his hobby, helping to install new units, writing and checking radio skits and producing radio plays. By taking an active interest in radio, he has made rallies and classes more enjoyable for Washington students.

Another enterprising young artist, trying to make himself worthy of his instructor, is Lew Posich. Tall and dark, this Don Juan is pictured at the easel with which he plans to make his living. As a staff artist, Lew was responsible for some of the art work used in this Surveyor. This able artist will get his teaching degree at San Francisco State College. Besides enjoying art work, Lew was a member of the track team and the senior play cast.

"Ding-Dong-Ding. This is the George Washington Broadcasting System" and once more the latest news has been announced to Washington students by friendly Joe Lydon. Joe has made radio his hobby although he will go to the University of California to study medicine. As radio announcer he has informed students about every subject from rallies to short periods and election returns.

And here at the end of the book, the Surveyor staff takes pleasure in saying that it has been work and fun, putting out this book. We've learned a lot about living in a democracy—such things as considering the likes and dislikes of our fellows, the importance of accuracy and timeliness, and value of responsibility and dependability.

What we have learned will stand us in good stead in our future. Our deepest wish is that you also, during your time at George Washington High School, have learned the pleasure of being good citizens in a living democracy.
